Abstract: Research files, manuscripts, photos, posters, artifacts, and secondary material related to circus performer Clyde Beatty.

Biography: Clyde Beatty (1903-1965) was a twentieth century celebrity chiefly famous for being a lion and tiger trainer in the circus.

Clyde Beatty was born in Bainbridge, Ohio on 10 June 1903. He joined the circus at eighteen, initially working as a cage cleaner but quickly achieving fame as a big cat trainer. Beatty worked with up to 40 lions and tigers of both sexes in the cage at the same time, and was one of the most well-known circus performers of his day. Beatty appeared in films from the 1930s to the 1950s, and on television until the 1960s (including such cultural mainstays as The Ed Sullivan Show). The Clyde Beatty Show, a syndicated radio series loosely based on events in Beatty's own life, aired from 1950 to 1952. Beatty owned his own circus show for a time. Later the Beatty Show name was leased by the parties who had acquired the show at bankruptcy, who eventually also bought the Cole Bros. Show title (which had been unused for several years) and added it to the Beatty title to form the title Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus.

Beatty married three times over the course of his life, first to Ernestine Pegg of Peru, Indiana. The two had one child, Joyce Ferguson, also of Peru, Indiana. On 16 September 1933 Beatty married his second wife, Harriet Evans, who had joined the circus several years earlier. Harriet went on to become an animal trainer in her own right, and had her own act beginning in 1935. Their marriage lasted until Harriet's death in 1950. Beatty married a third time, to Jane Abel of San Antonio, and the two had one child, Clyde Beatty Jr. Beatty died of cancer at age 62 on 19 July 1965.

Access restrictions: 8mm and 16mm films were moved to off-site cold storage for preservation purposes. Access to these items will need to be coordinated through the Special Collections Librarian.

Special Collections may not have the equipment to provide playback of certain audio and video formats (for example, Laserdisc). Special Collections will attempt to provide access in an alternative format when this occurs. Please contact the Special Collections Librarian for further details.

Arrangement of Materials: The Dave and Mary Jane Price Clyde Beatty Collection is arranged into seven series.

Series 1, Research Files and Correspondence contains research materials compiled by collection donor Dave Price. The series is divided into two sub-series, Research Files and Correspondence Regarding Research. Research Files relate to a specific year in Beatty's life (for example, 1955 relates to events in the year 1955, although documents may have been created in other years) and are arranged chronologically by event year. Also included are a few subject related research files. Correspondence Regarding Research contains correspondence to and from Price regarding research into various aspects of Beatty's life and career.

Series 2, Manuscripts contains manuscript material such as sheet music, circus correspondence (with letterheads and envelopes), business records, CFA (Circus Fan Association) rosters, lithograph routes, movie related materials, press materials, and a small amount of photos. Materials are arranged chronologically.

Series 3, Photographs contains photos related to Beatty's life and career. Photographs are divided into three sub-series by format. Sub-Series 1, 8x10 Photographs contains photos related to venues where Beatty performed, photos of Beatty, second wife Harriet, third wife Jane, and son Clyde Jr., circus photos, animal photos, locations associated with Beatty, the several motion pictures Beatty starred in, and promotional photos. Sub-Series 2, Photo scrapbooks, contains photo albums with photos related to Beatty's life and career. Sub-Series 3, 5x7 and smaller photographs, contains photos arranged chronologically, Beatty and various circuses, equipment, zoo ground photos, and the photo collection of Bob Cline.

Series 4, Publications contains published materials related to Beatty. The series is arranged into nine sub-series: Comics, Lobby cards, Newspapers, Periodicals, (Circus) Programs, Published books, Route cards, Scrapbooks of newsclippings, and Souvenir postcards with maps and newsclippings. Each sub-series contains materials related to the title of the sub-series.

Series 5, Audio and Video contains video and audio recordings related to Beatty. Both Sub-Series are divided further by format, and arranged chronologically within that format). The Audio Sub-Series contains recording of the Clyde Beatty Radio Show, a player-piano roll of "Where is my wandering boy tonight," (which music his mother used to play on the player piano after Clyde left) and circus and popular music related to Beatty. The Video Sub-Series contains films and serials starring Beatty, of Beatty in various circus performances, promotional films made by Beatty, appearances made by Beatty on television, and films of performers related to Beatty and big cat training.

Series 6, Artifacts contains three dimensional objects and memorabilia related to Clyde Beatty and the Clyde Beatty Museum. The series is divided into seven sub-series, including Apparel; Figurines and statues; Printing, Show and personal items; Signage; Toys, models, films, souvenirs; and Small display items.

Series 7, Posters and Wall Art contains posters related to Clyde Beatty and the various circuses with which he performed. Posters are foldered by size, and then by circus.

Appendix 1: Winter Quarters

Late in 1944 Beatty bought Wallace Bros, which was wintered in York, South Carolina. After 1945, the only season of the Clyde Beatty Circus on trucks, it went to Macon, Georgia, as Floyd King had bought it and renamed it King Bros.

Then Beatty went to El Paso where Art Concello's 1945 Russell Bros. Pan Pacific was wintered. They changed the title to Clyde Beatty Circus and opened there in the spring of 1946, getting to the West Coast as quickly as possible. The show made excellent profits in Canada and Beatty bought Concello out after the successful season. Beatty took the show to Nacogdoches, Texas to winter 1946-47.

The show wintered in Shreveport, Louisiana in 1947-48.

The show wintered in El Monte, California in 1948-49 and 1949-50

The show wintered in Shreveport, Louisiana in 1950-51 (Harriet had just died and Beatty wanted to close and winter as soon as possible and Shreveport was close).

The show returned to El Monte, California to winter 1951-52

The show wintered in Newhall, California for the 1952-53 season, a fact often forgotten by Beatty fans and scholars.

The show wintered in Deming, New Mexico for the 1953-54, 1954-55 and 1955-56 seasons. The show then returned to Deming after an early closing for re-organization under McClosky and Kernan, and reopened later and wintered in Deland, Florida.

Appendix 2: Clyde Beatty and Cole Bros. titles

From 1935-1938 Clyde Beatty worked for the Cole Bros., and sometimes the advertising would read "Cole Bros-Clyde Beatty Circus."

Beatty went out on his own in 1945 in a truck show and began using the title Clyde Beatty Circus. He continued using that title on a railroad show (which he operated under a partnership with Art Concello) beginning in 1946.

In mid-1956 Beatty lost ownership of the show, but stayed on as a feature act under the new owner.

The Cole Bros. Circus had gone out of business in the early 1950s, and in 1959 the new owners of the Beatty show bought the inactive Cole Bros. title and began calling their show the "Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus."

While the combined titles were used for many years (even after Beatty's death), no formal merger of the two circuses ever occurred. In recent years the show has just used the title Cole Bros. Circus.
